Cloud Engineer Job Description

- Responsible for the evaluation of cloud strategy and program architecture
- Responsible for gathering system requirements working together with application architects and owners
- Responsible for generating scripts and templates required for the automatic provisioning of resources
- Discover standard cloud services offerings, install, and execute processes and standards for optimal use of cloud service provider offerings
- Build software for the organization's systems and ES as a service offering
- Stay well-informed of failures and complications related to a cloud offering
- Responsible for debugging technical issues inside a complex stack involving virtualization, containers, microservices, etc.
- Collaborate with the engineering teams to enable their applications to run on Cloud infrastructure.