

Factory Graphic Designer Job Description

- Presenting designs and reports to management, customers, or design committees for approval, and also discussing the need for modification
- Examining and evaluating the feasibility of design ideas based on various factors, which may include appearance, function, safety, budget, serviceability, production costs, marketing characteristics, and/or methods
- Strictly adhering to industrial standards and regulatory guidelines
- Overseeing and supervising the work of other designers and/or assistants throughout the design process
- Carrying out designs with the utilization of relevant computer-aided design (CAD) programs and/or software
- Staying informed on current graphic design and marketing trends.