

Risk Consultant Job Description

- Talk with clients to pinpoint the risk involved in their business, and put controls in place to assuage the risks
- Implement internal audit of controls to determine their limitations and offer methods to enhance them
- Offer a variety of risk management consulting services to enable clients develop competence for all market facing operations as regards production, transmission, and distribution assets and systems
- Deliver risk program assessment, design and development services to assist clients reach their business objectives
- Create staffing plans for short term, mid-term and long term risk projects
- Develop project budgets and margins and control engagements within these parameters
- Run project teams of consultants, senior consultants, and analysts
- Convey best practice viewpoint to clients' risk management programs; model acclaimed risk management strategies with objectivity in both stochastic and deterministic frameworks
- Contribute immeasurably to the business development and sales process, including through identification of new leads
- Partner with relevant market experts to forecast future market conditions in respect to client portfolios and plan appropriate Risk management solutions
- Employ thought leadership that engenders the research and development of evolving issues and solutions affecting risk management in the industry.