

University Lecturer Job Description

---

- Craft and convey research backed instruction that effectively convey objectives and course content
- Conduct interactive learning sessions and guided practice to foster student engagement and critical thinking
- Answer inquiries and provide information to potential and existing students as well as other stakeholders
- Continually evaluate and refine teaching methods and course materials to augment student learning
- Incorporate diverse perspectives and inclusive teaching practices into course content and delivery
- Devise extensive course syllabi, clarifying course objectives, expected readings and evaluation methods
- Develop and rate essays, projects, exams, and other assignments to evaluate student learning and offer constructive feedback
- Coordinate the arrangement and oversight of student field excursions, internships, and other experiential learning opportunities
- Act as a domain specialist, furnishing advisement and proficiency to external stakeholders, such as policymakers and industry leaders
- Maintain the utmost principles of scholarly honesty and moral behavior in all aspects of their work
- Hold frequent office hours for individual support and student guidance
- Provide mentorship and supervision for students whether graduate or undergraduate, as well as those working on their dissertation or research project
- Coordinate the arrangement and oversight of student field excursions, internships, and other experiential learning opportunities
- Act as a domain specialist, furnishing advisement and proficiency to external stakeholders, such as policymakers and industry leaders
- Maintain the utmost principles of scholarly honesty and moral behavior in all aspects of your work

- Be current on the latest advancements, theories, and best practices in your field of study
- Spearhead seminal research and broaden intellectual horizon via the use of publications and conference presentations
- Cooperate with industry associates and community organizations to enhance the relevance and impact of research and learning
- Partake in career advancement opportunities such as workshops and conferences, to remain informed about emerging trends and best practices
- Add to the collective scholarly prestige and position of the university through research, teaching, and service
- Engage in cross functional research projects and publications across disciplines
- Contribute to sectional and campus-wide councils
- Provide academic and career guidance to students, helping them navigate their educational and professional paths
- Incorporate diverse viewpoints and inclusive instructional practices into course content and delivery
- Provide academic and vocational counseling to students, aiding them in navigating their educational and professional trajectories
- Assist in the formulation of innovative course offerings
- Partake in enrolment growth and deterrence of student attrition
- Serve as an ambassador/envoy for the institution and academic unit
- Seek third-party grants/investments for research undertakings
- Keep meticulous documentation of learner's performance, attendance and other important data.